NEW QUESTION: 1 Which statement is true about operating systems in an X5 Database Machine multirack configuration consisting of two full racks and one Exadata storage expansion rack?A. All Exadata storage servers may run Oracle Virtual Machine (OVM).B. All Exadata storage servers must run Oracle Linux.C. All Exadata storage servers must run the Oracle Linux O/S and all database servers within the same cluster must run the same version of Oracle Virtual Machine (OVM).D. All Exadata storage servers must run the Oracle Solaris O/S and all database servers within the same cluster must run Oracle Linux.E. All Exadata storage servers used by the same virtual cluster nodes must run the same O/S but Exadata Storage Servers in different clusters may run different operating systems.Answer: B*Explanation:Explanation/Reference:On both physical and virtual deployments, Exadata systems use minimal Linux distributions to ensure that just the RPMs needed to run Oracle database, are installed and enabled.References: <http://www.oracle.com/technetwork/database/exadata/exadata-x5-2-ds-2406241.pdf>

NEW QUESTION: 2 Temper embrittlement is a metallurgical change that is not readily apparent and can be confirmed through _____.A. Metallographic examinationB. None of the aboveC. Impact testingD. MetallographyAnswer: C

NEW QUESTION: 3 As a root user, you executed the following command on your Oracle Linux 6 server:`[root@host] # strace -o /tmp/diag.out sh diag.sh` Which statement describes the purpose of this command?A. It collects the operating system metrics when the `diag.sh` script runs.B. It records the system calls, which are called by the processes when the `diag.sh` script runs.C. It collects the memory and swap space metrics when the `diag.sh` scripts runs.D. It records the memory usage and CPU usage information of the processes when the `diah.sh` script runs.Answer: B*Explanation:*`strace` - trace system calls and signalsIn the simplest case `strace` runs the specified command until it exits. It intercepts and records the system calls which are called by a process and the signals which are received by a process. The name of each system call, its arguments and its return value are printed on standard error or to the file specified with the `-o` option.*`strace` is a useful diagnostic, instructional, and debugging tool. System administrators, diagnosticians and trouble-shooters will find it invaluable for solving problems with programs for which the source is not readily available since they do not need to be recompiled in order to trace them. Students, hackers and the overly-curious will find that a great deal can be learned about a system and its system calls by tracing even ordinary programs. And programmers will find that since system calls and signals are events that happen at the user/kernel interface, a close examination of this boundary is very useful for bug isolation, sanity checking and attempting to capture race conditions. Each line in the trace contains the system call name, followed by its arguments in parentheses and its return value. An example from stracing the command "cat /dev/null" is: `open("/dev/null", O_RDONLY) = 3` Errors (typically a return value of -1) have the `errno` symbol and error string appended. `open("/foo/bar", O_RDONLY) = -1 ENOENT` (No such file or directory) Signals are printed as a signal symbol and a signal string. An excerpt from stracing and interrupting the command "sleep 666" is: `sigsuspend([] <unfinished ...> --- SIGINT (Interrupt) --- +++ killed by SIGINT +++` Reference: `man strace`
