NEW QUESTION: 1Your network contains an Active Directory domain named adatum.com. The domain contains a server named Server1 that runs Windows Server 2012. Server1 is configured as a Network Policy Server (NPS) server and as a DHCP server. You need to ensure that only computers that send a statement of health are checked for Network Access Protection (NAP) health requirements. Which two settings should you configure? (Each correct answer presents part of the solution. Choose two.)
A. The NAP-Capable Computers conditions
B. The NAS Port Type constraints
C. The Called Station ID constraints
D. The MS-Service Class conditions
E. The Health Policies conditions
Answer: A, E
Explanation: If you want to configure the Health Policies condition, click Health Policies, and then click Add. In HealthPolicies, choose an existing health policy, and then click OK. If you have not yet configured health policies, click New, and then configure a new health policy. The Health Policies condition restricts the policy to clients that meet the health criteria in the policy that you specify. If you want to configure the NAP-capable Computers condition, click NAP-capable Computers, and then click Add. In Specify the computers required to match this policy, click either Only computers that are NAP-capable or Only computers that are not NAP-capable, and then click OK. The NAP-capable Computers condition restricts the policy to either clients that are capable of participating in NAP or clients that are not capable of participating in NAP. This capability is determined by whether the client sends a statement of health (SoH) to NPS.
