NEW QUESTION: 1The Certidea.com network consists of a single Active Directory domain named Certidea.com. All servers on the Certidea.com network run Windows Server 2003. Half the client computers run Windows XP Professional and the rest run Windows 2000 Professional. You create and share a folder named UserDocs on a member server. The current state of permissions for the folder is illustrated in the dialog box. Certidea.com users have been contacting the Help desk reporting that they receive an 'Access is denied' error message when attempting to add or create files and folders in UserDocs. You have received instruction from the CIO to configure the permissions on UserDocs to fulfill the following requirements: 1. Domain users must be able to create or add files and folders. 2. Domain users must NOT be able to change NTFS permissions on the files or folders that they create or add. 3. Domain users must receive the minimum level of required permissions. How will you accomplish the task? A. D. B. B.

Answer: B Explanation: Explanation/Reference: To answer, configure the appropriate option or options in the dialog box. The default share permission is Everyone - Read. To be able to write to the shared folder, the users require "Change" permission. The Change permission allows users to Read, Write, Execute and Delete files in the shared folder. Note: the exhibit shows the everyone group. In the exam, if you have the option to select the groups, then selecting Domain users - Change would be a better option. Share permissions can be set only at the folder level, not at the file level. Also note that shared-folder permissions apply only when accessing the resources across the network. These are the two most important ways in which NTFS permissions differ from shared-folder permissions.
