NEW QUESTION: 3 DRAG DROP You have a list of tasks entered into Microsoft Visual Studio Team Foundation Server (TFS) 2012. Each task has an estimated effort and assigned to a team member. You have limited resources available. Due to external requirements, the start date and end date of the current iteration are fixed. Several of the tasks have dependencies on one another. You need to identify a critical path. What should you do? (To answer, move the three appropriate actions from the list of actions to the answer area and arrange them in the correct order.)A. Create predecessor/successor relationship between dependent tasks, Create parent/child relationship between dependent tasks, Use Microsoft Project's Tracking Gantt featureB. Create predecessor/successor relationship between dependent tasks, Create a query to return the tasks and open the query in Microsoft Project, Use Microsoft Project's Tracking Gantt featureC. Use Microsoft Project's Tracking Gantt feature, Create parent/child relationship between dependent tasks, Create predecessor/successor relationship between dependent tasksD. Create a query to return the tasks and open the query in Microsoft Project, Use Microsoft Project's Tracking Gantt feature, Create predecessor/successor relationship between dependent tasksAnswer: BExplanation:Explanation:You can link tasks within the same project by using the Gantt Chart view, the Network Diagram view, or theCalendar view.Note:*The critical path is simply the series of tasks that controls the start and finish date of the project. When the last task in the critical path is complete, the project is also complete.*After tasks are created in a project, they need to be linked to show relationships between them.Linking tasks creates task dependencies.*Project management systems allow for an analysis of critical path by reviewing dependencies between tasks. While Team Foundation Server allows for dependent relationships, it performs no analysis on those relationships.*Link types:Finish-to-start (FS) Start-to-start (SS)Finish-to-finish (FF)Start-to-finish (SF)Reference: Create task dependencies (links) within your project
