NEW QUESTION: 1 You have a server named Server1 that runs Windows Server 2012. You add a 4-TB disk named Disk 5 to Server1. You need to ensure that you can create a 3-TB volume on Disk 5. What should you do? A. Convert the disk to a GPT disk. B. Convert the disk to a dynamic disk. C. Create a storage pool. D. Create a VHD, and then attach the VHD. Answer: A Explanation: D. MBR max is 2TB, the disk must be GPT. For any hard drive over 2TB, we need to use GPT partition. If you have a disk larger than 2TB size, the rest of the disk space will not be used unless you convert it to GPT. An existing MBR partition can't be converted to GPT unless it is completely empty; you must either delete everything and convert or create the partition as GPT. It is not possible to boot to a GPT partition, impossible to convert MBR to GPT without data loss. <http://msdn.microsoft.com/en-us/library/windows/hardware/gg463525.aspx>

NEW QUESTION: 2 A network administrator cannot connect to a remote router by using SSH. Part of the show interfaces command is shown. `router#show interfaces Serial0/1/0 is up, line protocol is down` At which OSI layer should the administrator begin troubleshooting? A. physical B. data link C. network D. transport Answer: B Explanation: <https://learningnetwork.cisco.com/thread/12389> I think the indication here is "Serial 0 is up, line protocol is down". What causes this indication? Correct me if I am wrong. When you have this indication, a cable unplugged is not a correct answer. If you check the output of your "show interface serial 0" command again, you should notice it as "Serial 0 is down, line protocol is down. Under the "show ip int brief" you should see status = down and protocol = down as opposed to up, down. Because you disconnected the cable, layer 1 will go down, which is indicated by the serial 0 down status. The line protocol status is for layer 2. So, a cable unplugged is not a correct answer to "Serial 0 is up, line protocol is down". Hope this helps.

NEW QUESTION: 3 Symantec Control Compliance Suite 11.0 can collect raw data in both agentless and agent-based modes.
