(AMON is an easy way to monitor a network where the primary access method is through Aruba Mobility Controllers.)A. YesB. NoAnswer: A

NEW QUESTION: 2You are working with the project stakeholders to analyze and prioritize their requirements for the project. One of the project requirements is to achieve a high-level of customer satisfaction for the project deliverable. What is the danger in this project requirement?A. Achieving customer satisfaction is an assumption and should be documented in the project scope.B. Achieving customer satisfaction is a risk, as the project manager cannot control how satisfied the customer will be with the project deliverables.C. Achieving customer satisfaction should always map to the quality requirements for the project.D. Achieving customer satisfaction is a subjective requirement and entails a high level of risk of being successfully accomplished.*Answer: DExplanation:Explanation/Reference:While every project manager wants to achieve customer satisfaction, this subjective term is too vague to be measured or accounted for. What one person deems customer satisfaction may be low compared to another. Requirements need metrics to determine the level of success. C is incorrect. The subjective requirements cannot be measured or mapped to quality requirements. B is incorrect. This is not an assumption, but a subjective requirement. A is incorrect. This is not a risk, but a requirement that needs metric for measurement attached to it.

NEW QUESTION: 4 What is NOT true with pre shared key authentication within IKE / IPsec protocol?A. Needs a Public Key Infrastructure (PKI) to workB. IKE builds upon the Oakley protocol and the ISAKMP protocol.C. Pre shared key authentication is normally based on simple passwordsD. IKE is used to setup Security AssociationsAnswer: A

Explanation: Internet Key Exchange (IKE or IKEv2) is the protocol used to set up a security association (SA) in the IPsec protocol suite. IKE builds upon the Oakley protocol and ISAKMP. IKE uses X.509 certificates for authentication which are either pre-shared or distributed using DNS (preferably with DNSSEC) and a Diffie-Hellman key exchange to set up a shared session secret from which cryptographic keys are derived. Internet Key Exchange (IKE) Internet key exchange allows communicating partners to prove their identity to each other and establish a secure communication channel, and is applied as an authentication component of IPsec. IKE uses two phases: Phase 1: In this phase, the partners authenticate with each other, using one of the following: Shared Secret: A key that is exchanged by humans via telephone, fax, encrypted e-mail, etc. Public Key Encryption: Digital certificates are exchanged. Revised mode of Public Key Encryption: To reduce the overhead of public key encryption, a nonce (a cryptographic function that refers to a number or bit string used only once, in security engineering) is encrypted with the communicating partner's public key, and the peer's identity is encrypted with symmetric encryption using the nonce as the key. Next, IKE establishes a temporary security association and secure tunnel to protect the rest of the key exchange. Phase 2: The peers' security associations are established, using the secure tunnel and temporary SA created at the end of phase 1.
