Which of the following would be a reason that this would not be successful?A. Using a reference number instead of the postal code for sorting depends upon a communications link that is not completely reliable.B. Read-only tags are not able to be reused and re-write tags can be re-used.C. When recording the destination information at package pickup it is feared that the wrong postal code will be entered.D. Distribution of the read-only tags to the drivers requires that each driver have a specific sequence of numbers in the tag.Answer: A

NEW QUESTION: 3A storage administrator is configuring SAN switches and zoning to connect an eight X-BrickXtremIO array. A VMware ESXi server is hosted on a blade chassis with 16 HBA ports. In addition, the SAN is composed of two separate SAN switches.What is the recommended XtremIO best practice for zoning?A. Two HBA connections per host connected to a single switchMultiple initiators/multiple targets per zoneMaximum of 4 paths for each LUN per zoneB. Connect all N1 storage controllers to the first switchConnect N2 storage controllers to the second switchMultipath all host ports to single LUNs per zoneMaximum of 4 paths for each LUN per zoneC. Multiple HBA connections per hostSingle initiator/single target per zoneMaximum of 2 paths to each X-Brick for each initiatorEach host connected to each SAN switchD. Connect a single storage controller to the first switchConnect a second storage controller to the second switchSingle initiator/multiple targets per zoneMaximum of 6 paths for each LUN per zoneAnswer: DExplanation:In an environment where a host with two HBAs (VMware Best Practice) is connected to two fabrics and storage array with two Storage Controllers (EMC VNX, for example) the host will have four paths to a LUN: 2 Controllers x 2 HBAs = 4 pathsIf you go to the extreme and configure your XtremIO with eight X-Brick, you have 16 controllers. Again, two HBAs per host and the max number of LUNs you can attach to anESXi host will be 32... I understand, different OS'es may have different limits than VMware and this logic will not be applicable.If you have hit the limit of 1024 paths per host (1024 / 4 controllers / 2 HBAs = 128 LUNs) and need to provision more LUNs, the best way will be to re-zone the host to limit the number of X-Bricks / Controllers the host HBA can connect to.The following diagram displays the logical connection topology for 4 paths.

NEW QUESTION: 4A customer has several different storage systems from different vendors all connected on a storage area network.
