NEW QUESTION: 1Your network contains a server named Server1 that has the Remote Desktop Licensing (RD Licensing) role service installed.You need to ensure that you can restore the RD Licensing environment if Server1 fails.What should you include in the backup? (Each correct answer presents part of the solution. Choose two.)A. the folder that contains the configuration files of the license serverB. the system stateC. the folder that contains the database of the license serverD. the local certificate storeAnswer: B,C*Explanation:Back Up a Remote Desktop License ServerYou should back up your Remote Desktop license server regularly by using the Windows Server Backup tool or the backup software deployed in your environment. This helps protect your licensing data from accidental loss if your system experiences hardware or storage failure. When backing up a license server, back up both the System State data and the folder in which the RD Licensing database is installed. This ensures that data in both the registry and the RDLicensing database is backed up Source:
