NEW QUESTION: 1You need to recommend how many database availability groups (DAGs) and how many namespaces must be added to the site resilience solution to meet the availability requirements. How many namespaces and DAGs should you recommend adding? To answer, select the appropriate options in the answer area. NOTE: Each correct selection is worth one point. Hot Area: Answer: Explanation: Explanation/Reference: Explanation: From scenario: The site resilience solution must follow the bound namespace model. The forest contains a site in Houston and a site in London. Litware plans to implement a site resilience solution ensuring that outbound email messages can be delivered if one of the sites fails. The site resilience solution must allow all users to access their mailbox if a server fails in each site. Box 1: Four Deploy a dedicated namespace for each datacenter in the site resilient pair (bound model). In a bound model, multiple namespaces are preferred, two per datacenter (primary and failback namespaces), to prevent clients trying to connect to the datacenter where they may have no connectivity. Box 2: Two As its name implies, in a bound model, users are associated (or bound) to a specific datacenter. In other words, there is preference to have the users operate out of one datacenter during normal operations and only have the users operate out of the second datacenter during failure events. There is also a possibility that users do not have equal connectivity to both datacenters. Typically, in a bound model, there are two DAGs deployed in the datacenter pair. Each DAG contains a set of mailbox databases for a particular datacenter; by controlling where the databases are mounted, you control connectivity. Incorrect Answers: Deploy a unified namespace for the site resilient datacenter pair (unbound model). In an unbound model, you have a single DAG deployed across the datacenter pair.
