NEW QUESTION: 1In a single channel architecture (SCA) WLAN system, 802.11n (HT) APs should not share an SSID with 802.11g (ERP) APs.What is the reason for this recommendation?
A. The additional beacon material in 802.11n beacons would confuse 802.11b/g client stations.
B. Beacons from 802.11n APs use 40 MHz channels, while beacons from 802.11g APs use 20 MHz channels.
C. The added range of 802.11n APs would cause additional co-channel interference.
D. Client stations would see two different sets of AP capabilities as they roam between APs with the same BSSID.Answer: D

NEW QUESTION: 2Which of the following is assured by the use of a hash?
A. Integrity
B. Confidentiality
C. Availability
D. Authentication
Answer: A
Explanation:An important application of secure hashes is verification of message integrity. Determining whether any changes have been made to a message (or a file), for example, can be accomplished by comparing message digests calculated before, and after, transmission (or any other event).

Answer: C

NEW QUESTION: 4Which of the following statements best describes the ideal role of an application owner with respect to defining application security?
A. The application owner should hire a security expert to define security requirements for his or her applications, based on current Industry best practices. Actively implementing the latest trends will best ensure a secure application environment.
B. The application owner should recommend adherence to common established practices for assessments, classifications, architecture, and policies that have been defined, and are actively maintained, by security experts across the organization.

Deviations may be necessary, but application owners should strive to be consistent with best practices that have been adopted by the organization. C. The application owner must become knowledgeable about security risks, threats, classifications, and policies in order to define security requirements for his or her applications. The more on owner learns about security, the more secure his or her applications will become. D. The application owner, whenever possible, should elect to deploy applications into a public cloud computing environment. Doing so effectively delegates responsibility and accountability of concerns to another company. The owner doesn't need to be concerned with security as long as the cloud provider has been certified. Answer: B Explanation: Explanation/Reference: Application ownership can have an effect on application security. Ownership, in this sense, refers to the person, department, or organization that has authority over the security protections and processes that are followed. Owners have a role in expressing policy. They may choose to set strict policies and follow best practices and reference architectures. Or, they may choose to be lax on security and/or set their own standards. Ideally, an enterprise-class security architecture and processes are developed by pooling industry best practices and ideas, and all applications follow a common strategy without being compromised by ownership issues.
