NEW QUESTION: 1What are two characteristics of Frame Relay point-to-point subinterfaces? (Choose two.)A. They require a unique subnet within a routing domain.B. They create split-horizon issues.C. They are ideal for full-mesh topologies.D. They emulate leased lines.E. They require the use of NBMA options when using OSPF.Answer: A,DExplanation:
<http://www.ciscopress.com/articles/article.asp?p=170741&seqNum=5>Configuring Frame Relay SubinterfacesOn partially meshed Frame Relay networks, the problem of split horizon can be overcome by using Frame Relaysubinterfaces. Frame Relay provides a mechanism to allow a physical interface to be partitioned into multiple virtualinterfaces. In a similar way, using subinterfaces allows a partially meshed network to be divided into a number ofsmaller, fully meshed point-to-point networks. Generally, each point-to-point subnetwork is assigned a uniqueness network address. This allows packets received on one physical interface to be sent out from the same physicalinterface, albeit forwarded on VCs in different subinterfaces. There are two types of subinterfaces supported by Cisco routers: point-to-point and multipoint subinterfaces.
