A. put the bulleted list items in alphabetical order
B. change a refrigerator that is dirty to a dirty refrigerator
C. replace insufficient locker space with not having enough locker space
D. change the bulleted list to regular text
E. replace malfunctioning with malfunction
Answer: B
Explanation:
Explanation/Reference: Explanation: The items in the list should use the same grammatical pattern (parallel structure), so a refrigerator that is dirty should be a dirty refrigerator to match the adjective, noun pattern of the other items in the list. Choice a is incorrect because the list is more effective as a bulleted list, especially for a business document. Choice b is incorrect because malfunctioning is an adjective and the phrase requires an adjective. Choice c is incorrect because the list does not need to be in alphabetical order (it is probably most effective in order of importance, from the biggest problem to the smallest problem). Choice e is incorrect because the change would destroy parallel structure and add unnecessary words.
