NEW QUESTION: 1You have a DNS server named Server1 that runs Windows Server 2012 R2. You need to disable recursion on Server1.What are three possible ways to achieve the goal? Each correct answer presents a complete solution.A. Run dns.cmd.exe and specify the /config parameter.B. From DNS Manager, modify the Forwarders properties of server1.C. Create a reverse lookup zone named 0.in-addr.arpa.D. From DNS Manager, modify the Advanced properties of Server1.E. Create a forward lookup zone named GlobalNames.F. Create a forward lookup zone named ".".Answer: A,D,FExplanation:Explanation/Reference:A: To disable recursion on the DNS server using the Windows interface1. Open DNS Manager.2. In the console tree, right-click the applicable DNS server, then click Properties.3. Click the Advanced tab.4. In Server options, select the Disable recursion check box, and then click OK.E: Disable recursion on DNS servers that do not respond to DNS clients directly and that are not configured with forwarders. A DNS server requires recursion only if it responds to recursive queries from DNS clients or if it is configured with a forwarder. DNS servers use iterative queries to communicate with each other.The DNS server has root DNS servers in its configuration so it returns the root DNS server details each time it is queried for a non existent domain name. To prevent this we need to create a forward lookup zone with the name "." F: To disable recursion on the DNS server using a command line1. Open a command prompt.2.
