NEW QUESTION: 1Which switch would STP choose to become the root bridge in the selection process?A. 32768: 22-33-44-55-66-77B. 32769: 22-33-44-55-66-78C. 32768: 11-22-33-44-55-66D. 32769: 11-22-33-44-55-65Answer: C*Explanation:The root bridge of the spanning tree is the bridge with the smallest (lowest) bridge ID. Each bridge has a configurable priority number and a MAC Address; the bridge ID contains both numbers combined together - Bridge priority + MAC (32768.0200.0000.1111). The Bridge priority default is 32768 and can only be configured in multiples of 4096 (Spanning tree uses the 12 bits extended system ID). To compare two bridge IDs, the priority is compared first, as if looking at a real number anything less than 32768...will become the target of being the root. If two bridges have equal priority then the MAC addresses are compared; for example, if switches A (MAC=0200.0000.1111) and B (MAC=0200.0000.2222) both have a priority of 32768 then switch A will be selected as the root bridge. In this case, 32768: 11-22-33-44-55-66 would be the bridge because it has a lower priority and MAC address.

NEW QUESTION: 2Refer to the exhibit. R4 is configured as an OSPF stub; however, R4 should still be learning the OSPF LSA type 3 interarea routes from 209.165.202.130. Which action will solve this issue?A. Remove any route maps from R4 that are filtering the incoming OSPF updates.B. Enable sending summary LSA's by removing no-summary from the stub command on the ASBR.C. Enable sending summary LSA's by removing no-summary from the stub command on the ABR.D. Control of interarea route propagation is best handled with EIGRP.Answer: C*Explanation:By default the no-summary command should NOT be enabled on the ABR as this would make Area 20 a Totally Stubby Area not a Stub area. And R4 should receive routes fro 209.165.202.130 as it is directly connected to Area 0 based off of the exhibit.

NEW QUESTION: 3Your network contains two servers named Server1 and Server2 that have the Streaming Media Services role installed. Server1 is located in a subnet named Subnet1. Server2 is located in a subnet named Subnet2. Server1 has an on-demand publishing point named Content1. Content1 has a 1-Mbps bit rate. Server2 is configured as a cache/proxy server. You need to ensure that users on Subnet2 can stream Content1 from Server2. The solution must ensure that Content1 is available on Server2 before the users request the stream. What should you modify?

A. the Cache settings on Server1
B. the Prestuff settings on Server2
C. the Cache settings on Server2
D. the Proxy settings on Server1
Answer: B
Explanation: WMS Cache Proxy - Prestuff properties
You can configure the following options on the Prestuff tab for this plug-in.
Item Description
Prestuff from StreamSelect this option to enable this server to cache content by streaming it from the origin server, even when it is not requested by clients. Type the URL of the file on the origin server in the URL box (for example, http://server/publishing_point/file), and then select one of the following Prestuff Rate options that specify the speed at which this server caches content from the origin server: Maximum Available Bandwidth. Choose this option to cache content from the origin server as fast as the network will allow. Content Bit Rate. Choose this option to cache content from the origin server at the same bit rate as the requested content bit rate. Note that for MBR content, the caching speed is the same as the average bit rate of the content. Kbps. Enter a value in this box to specify the bit rate at which this server caches content from the origin server.
Prestuff from FileSelect this option to enable this server to make a file on an available file storage system, such as a local file system, storage area network (SAN), or network-attached storage (NAS), available for streaming to clients. To copy the file from file storage to the cache directory on this server and make it available to clients before it is requested, do the following: Type the UNC path of the file in the Content Path box (for example, \\server\folder\file or network_share\file). Type the URL that clients must use to stream the file in the Stream URL box (for example, rtsp://server/publishing_point/file or http://server/publishing_point/file). Select the Copy content to local cache directory check box. To copy the file from file storage to the cache directory on this server only after a client requests it, do the following: 1. Type the UNC path of the file in the Content Path box. 2. Type the URL that clients must use to stream the file in the Stream URL box. for example, rtsp://server/publishing_point/file or http://server/publishing_point/file). 3. Select the Copy content to local cache directory check box. Make sure that the Copy content to local cache directory check box is not selected. Note that this server cannot use freshness checking to determine whether the file in the file storage system has been updated. If the file has been updated, you must click Prestuff to cache the updated file to the cache directory. Prestuff Click this button to start caching the specified content from the origin server, even when it is not requested by clients.
