NEW QUESTION: 4 Which statement about shaped round robin queuing is true? A. The device services a single queue completely before moving on to the next queue. B. Queues with higher configured weights are serviced first. C. Shaped mode is available on both the ingress and egress queues. D. The device waits a period of time, set by the configured weight, before servicing the next queue. Answer: B Explanation: SRR is scheduling service for specifying the rate at which packets are dequeued. With SRR there are two modes, shaped and shared. Shaped mode is only available on the egress queues SRR differs from typical WRR. With WRR queues are serviced based on the weight. Q1 is serviced for weight 1 period of time, Q2 is served for weight 2 period of time, and so forth. The servicing mechanism works by moving from queue to queue and services them for the weighted amount of time. With SRR weights are still followed; however, SRR services Q1, moves to Q2, then Q3 and Q4 in a different way. It does not wait at and service each queue for a weighted amount of time before moving on to the next queue. Instead, SRR makes several rapid passes at the queues; in each pass, each queue might or might not be serviced. For each given pass, the more highly weighted queues are more likely to be serviced than the lower priority queues. Reference.
