NEW QUESTION: 1What is the mechanism behind Threat Extraction?A. This is a new mechanism which extracts malicious files from a document to use it as a counter-attack against its senderB. Any active contents of a document, such as JavaScripts, macros and links will be removed from the document and forwarded to the intended recipient, which makes this solution very fastC. This is a new mechanism to identify the IP address of the sender of malicious codes and to put it into the SAM database (Suspicious Activity Monitoring).D. This is a new mechanism which is able to collect malicious files out of any kind of file types to destroy it prior to sending it to the intended recipientAnswer: B

NEW QUESTION: 2ScenarioRefer to the topology. Your company has decided to connect the main office with three other remote branch offices using point-to-point serial links.You are required to troubleshoot and resolve OSPF neighbor adjacency issues between the main office and the routers located in the remote branch offices.Use appropriate show commands to troubleshoot the issues and answer all four questions.InstructionsAn OSPF neighbor adjacency is not formed between R3 in the main office and R5 in the Branch2 office.What is causing the problem?A. There is an OSPF hello and dead interval mismatch.B. There is a PPP authentication issue; a password mismatch.C. There is a missing network command in the OSPF process on R5.D. There is an area ID mismatch.Answer: AExplanation:

Explanation/Reference:Explanation:Here are the relevant parts of the router configs:Continue checking their connected interfaces with the "show running-config" command:The only difference we can see here is the line "ip ospf hello-interval 50" on R3. This command sets the number of seconds R3 waits before sending the next hello packet out this interface. In this case after configuring this command, R3 will send hello packets to R5 every 50 seconds. But the default value of hello-interval is 10 seconds and R5 is using it. Therefore we can think of a hello interval mismatch problem here. You can verify with the "show ip ospf interface <interface>" command on each router.So we can see both hello and dead interval are mismatched because the dead interval always four times the value of hello interval, unless you manually configure the dead interval (with the ip ospf dead-interval<seconds> command).

NEW QUESTION: 3Your network contains two DHCP servers. The DHCP servers are named DHCP1 and DHCP2. The internal network contains 1,000 DHCP client computers that are located on a single subnet. A router separates the internal network from the Internet. The router has a single IP address on the internal interface. DHCP1 has the following scope information: -Starting IP address: 172.16.0.1 -Ending IP address: 172.16.7.255 -Subnet mask: 255.255.240.0 You need to provide a fault-tolerant DHCP infrastructure that supports the client computers on the internal network. In the event that a DHCP server fails, all client computers must be able to obtain a valid IP address. How should you configure DHCP2? A. Create a scope for the subnet 172.16.0.0/21. Configure the scope to use a starting IP address of 172.16.0.1 and an ending IP address of 172.16.15.254. B. Create a scope for the subnet 172.16.8.0/21. Configure the scope to use a starting IP address of 172.16.8.1 and an ending IP address of 172.16.10.254. C. Create a scope for the subnet 172.17.0.0/16. Configure the scope to use a starting IP address of 172.17.0.1 and an ending IP address of 172.17.255.254. D. Create a scope for the subnet 172.16.0.0/20. Configure the scope to use a starting IP address of 172.16.8.1 and an ending IP address of 172.16.15.254. Answer: D Explanation: Create a scope for the subnet 172.16.0.0/20. Configure the scope to use a starting IP address of 172.16.8.1 and an ending IP address of 172.16.15.254. Subnet 255.255.240.0 is a /20 subnet in CIDR notation, this allows for 4096 client IPs, ranging from 172.16.0.1 all the way to 172.16.15.254 as DHCP1 only used half of the available IPs then you should configure DHCP2 to use the other half. http://en.wikipedia.org/wiki/Classless_Inter-Domain_Routing as an aside you could consider the 80/20 design rule for balancing scope distribution of addresses where multiple DHCP servers are deployed to service the same scope. Using more than one DHCP server on the same subnet provides increased fault tolerance for servicing DHCP clients located on it. With two DHCP servers, if one server is unavailable, the other server can take its place and continue to lease new addresses or renew existing clients. A common practice when balancing a single network and scope range of addresses between two DHCP servers is to have 80 percent of the addresses distributed by one DHCP server and the remaining 20 percent provided by a second.
