NEW QUESTION: 4Most of unplanned downtime of information systems is attributed to which of the following?A. Human errorB. Natural disasterC. Software failureD. Hardware failureAnswer: DExplanation:This is what the static's says. Most of the downtime is cause of unexpected hardware failure. Commonly you just replace the FRU (Field replazable unit) when they fail.Usually a well written software does not fail if the hardware is running correctly. The human errors are controllable and natural disasters are not very often. Hardware failure is very common, it's a good practice to have spare disks, NIC and any other hardware FRU's in your company to minimize the downtime with quick replacements.
