NEW QUESTION: 2After a recent breach, the security administrator performs a wireless survey of the corporate network. The security administrator notices a problem with the following output:
MACSSIDENCRYPTIONPOWERBEACONS00:10:A1:36:12:CCMYCORP WPA2 CCMP601202
00:10:A1:49:FC:37MYCORP WPA2 CCMP709102FB:90:11:42:FA:99MYCORP WPA2 CCMP403031
00:10:A1:AA:BB:CCMYCORP WPA2 CCMP55202100:10:A1:FA:B1:07MYCORP WPA2 CCMP306044
Given that the corporate wireless network has been standardized, which of the following attacks is underway?
A. IV attack
B. DDoS
C. Rogue AP
D. Evil twin
Answer: D
Explanation/Reference: Explanation: The question states that the corporate wireless network has been standardized. By 'standardized' it means the wireless network access points are running on hardware from the same vendor. We can see this from the MAC addresses used. The first half of a MAC address is vendor specific. The second half is network adapter specific. We have four devices with MAC addresses that start with 00:10:A1. The "odd one out" is the device with a MAC address starting FB:90:11. This device is from a different vendor. The SSID of the wireless network on this access point is the same as the other legitimate access points. Therefore, the access point with a MAC address starting FB:90:11 is impersonating the corporate access points. This is known as an Evil Twin. An evil twin, in the context of network security, is a rogue or fake wireless access point (WAP) that appears as a genuine hotspot offered by a legitimate provider. In an evil twin attack, an eavesdropper or hacker fraudulently creates this rogue hotspot to collect the personal data of unsuspecting users. Sensitive data can be stolen by spying on a connection or using a phishing technique. For example, a hacker using an evil twin exploit may be positioned near an authentic Wi-Fi access point and discover the service set identifier (SSID) and frequency. The hacker may then send a radio signal using the exact same frequency and SSID. To end users, the rogue evil twin appears as their legitimate hotspot with the same name. In wireless transmissions, evil twins are not a new phenomenon. Historically, they were known as honeypots or base station clones. With the advancement of wireless technology and the use of wireless devices in public areas, it is very easy for novice users to set up evil twin exploits.

NEW QUESTION: 3 How should a developer support mobile devices for the Search and Lister component?
A. Build a custom component
B. Within the edit dialog of the search pane, click the Enable Mobile checkbox
C. Do nothing. The component adjusts accordingly
D. Within the edit dialog of the list pane, click the Enable Mobile checkbox
Answer: C Explanation:

Explanation/Reference: Explanation: Forms Portal Search & Lister component is mobile device friendly and adapts accordingly. All three default views: Grid, Card, Panel layouts according to the device in which site is opened provided with the fact that web page also adapts. The simple fact is that, Search & Lister is a component only and does not govern page level styling.
