NEW QUESTION: 1You are developing a multi-tier application. The application will use Azure App Service web apps as the front end and an Azure SQL database as the back end. The application will use Azure functions to write some data to Azure Storage.You need to send the Azure DevOps team an email message when the front end fails to return a status code of 200. Which feature should you use?A. Service Map in Azure Log AnalyticsB. Application Map in Azure Application InsightsC. Profiler in Azure Application InsightsD. availability tests in Azure Application InsightsAnswer: DExplanation:
<https://docs.microsoft.com/en-us/azure/azure-monitor/app/monitor-web-app-availability>

NEW QUESTION: 2You have decided to migrate your application to the cloud. You cannot afford any downtime. You want to gradually migrate so that you can test the application with a small percentage of users and increase over time.Which of these options should you implement?A. Implement a Route 53 failover routing policy that sends traffic back to the on-premises application if theAWS application fails.B. Implement a Route 53 weighted routing policy that distributes the traffic between your on-premises application and the AWS application depending on weight.C. Use Direct Connect to route traffic to the on-premise location. In DirectConnect, configure the amount of traffic to be routed to the on-premise location.D. Configure an Elastic Load Balancer to distribute the traffic between the on-premises application and theAWS application.Answer: BExplanation:ExplanationOption A is incorrect because DirectConnect cannot control the flow of traffic.Option B is incorrect because you want to split the percentage of traffic. Failover will direct all of the traffic to the backup servers. Option C is incorrect because you cannot control the percentage distribution of traffic. Weighted routing lets you associate multiple resources with a single domain name (example.com) or subdomain name (acme.example.com) and choose how much traffic is routed to each resource. This can be useful for a variety of purposes, including load balancing and testing new versions of software.For more information on the Routing policy please refer to the below link:* <http://docs.aws.amazon.com/Route53/latest/DeveloperGuide/routing-policy.html>
