Instead of putting the values directly into the SQL statement, you just use a placeholder like ?, :name or @name and provide the actual values using a separate API call. When using bind parameters you do not write the actual values but instead insert placeholders into the SQL statement. That way the statements do not change when executing them with different values. Incorrect Answers: B: An assimilation value is not the correct term for a value that can be bound to a placeholder declared within an SQL statement. C: A reduction value is not the correct term for a value that can be bound to a placeholder declared within an SQL statement. D: A resolution value is not the correct term for a value that can be bound to a placeholder declared within an SQL statement. References: <http://use-the-index-luke.com/sql/where-clause/bind-parameters>
