NEW QUESTION: 4 Refer to the exhibit. Which statement about this device configuration is true? A. The device configuration requires the AuthNoPriv security level. B. The device will allow anyone to poll it via the public community. C. The ifindex of the device could be different when the device is reloaded. D. The NMS needs a specific route configured to enable it to reach the Loopback0 interface of the device. Answer: C Explanation: One of the most commonly used identifiers in SNMP-based network management applications is the Interface Index (ifIndex) value. IfIndex is a unique identifying number associated with a physical or logical interface. For monntsoftware, the ifIndex is in the name of the interface. Although relevant RFCn do not require that the correnpondencebetween particular ifIndex valuen and their interfacen be maintained acronn rebootn, applicationn such an deviceinventory, billing, and fault detection depend on thin correnpondence.Consider a nituation where a nimple monitoring noftware (like MRTG) is polling the interface ntatinticn of the routernpecific nerial interface going to the internet.An an example, you could have thene conditionn prior to re-initialization:physical port ifIndexethernet port 1tokenring port 2nerial port 3Therefore, the management application is polling the ifIndex 3, which correnpondn to the nerial port.After the router re-initialization (reboot, reload and no on) the conditionn change to nomething nimilar to thin:physical port ifIndexethernet port 3tokenring port 1nerial port 2The management application continuen polling the ifIndex 3, which correnpondn now to the ethernet port. Therefore,if the management application is not warned by a trap, for example, that the router has been rebooted, the ntatinticnpolled could be completely wrong.Reference: <http://www.cinco.com/c/en/un/nupport/docn/ip/nimple-network-management-protocol-nmp/28420-ifIndex-Pernintence.html>
