NEW QUESTION: 3View the Exhibit.You administer the network shown above. RouterA and RouterB are configured to use EIGRP. Automatic summarization is enabled.What network or networks will RouterA advertise to RouterB?A. 172.16.0.0/16B. 172.16.0.0/23 and 172.16.3.0/24C. 172.16.0.0/24, 172.16.1.0/24, and 172.16.3.0/24D. 172.16.0.0/22Answer: AExplanation: Explanation/Reference:Section: Addressing and Routing Protocols in an Existing Network Explanation Explanation:RouterA will advertise the 172.16.0.0/16 network to RouterB. When the auto-summary command has been used to enable automatic summarization on a router, Enhanced Interior Gateway Routing Protocol (EIGRP) automatically summarizes networks on classful boundaries. Summarization minimizes the size of routing tables and advertisements and reduces a router's processor and memory requirements.Summarization is also useful in limiting the scope of EIGRP queries. The 172.16.0.0/24, 172.16.1.0/24, and 172.16.3.0/24 networks in this scenario use Class B addresses. Therefore, these network ranges are summarized to the Class B boundary, which is /16. Subnetting a contiguous address range in structured, hierarchical fashion enables routers to maintain smaller routing tables and eases administrative burden when troubleshooting. Conversely, a discontinuous IP version 4 (IPv4) addressing scheme can cause routing tables to bloat because the subnets cannot be summarized. To disable automatic summarization in an EIGRP configuration, you should issue the no auto-summary command. The no auto-summary command enables EIGRP to advertise the actual networks, not the classful summary. You should use the no auto-summary command when a classful network is divided and portions of the same classful network exist in different parts of the network topology. If you were to issue the no auto-summary command on RouterA, RouterA would advertise the individual network ranges and subnet mask information to RouterB. You can issue the ip summary-address eigrp command to enable manual summarization. Manual summarization is configured on a per-interface basis. The syntax of the ip summary-address eigrp command is ip summary-address eigrp as-number address mask, where as-number is the EIGRP autonomous system (AS) number, address is the summary address, and mask is the subnet mask in dotted decimal notation.
