NEW QUESTION: 1Your customer has a complex workspace that has 60+ tabs, 100+ data fields, and over 200+ rules that are fired based on agent actions for their different business functions. Your customer has told you that their workspace is painfully slow and the call center agents cannot do their work. The customer would like to keep using a single profile for all their agents to simplify administration. You have condensed many of the rules in the workspace into named events to try and speed things up, but on the call center agents' workstations it's still too slow. Which three options will speed up the agents' workspace? (Choose three.)
A. utilize a single workspace per business function and assign it to the profile
B. utilize workflow to split the workspace into more than one
C. reduce the number of data fields on the workspace
D. create workspace rules to hide unused tabs when the workspace loads
E. reduce the number of tabs that need to be rendered
