NEW QUESTION: 1Regarding a pre-sales Technical and Delivery Assessment, there is a requirement to implement Global Mirror with a new IBM DS8886 deployment. Which planning requirement must be discussed as part of the checklist planning review?
A. A sizing of the remote copy links has been performed
B. The number of required FICON connections for replication links
C. Ensure IBM Copy Data Management licenses have been sized
D. The FlashCopy capacity required at the primary site for change volumes
Answer: C

NEW QUESTION: 2Which branching strategy should you recommend for the investment planning applications suite?
A. main only
B. development isolation
C. release isolation
D. feature isolation
Answer: B
Explanation: Scenario: A branching strategy that supports developing new functionality in isolation must be used. Feature isolation is a special derivation of the development isolation, allowing you to branch one or more feature branches from main, as shown, or from your dev branches. When you need to work on a particular feature, it might be a good idea to create a feature branch. Incorrect Answers: A: Release isolation introduces one or more release branches from main. The strategy allows concurrent release management, multiple and parallel releases, and codebase snapshots at release time. B: The Main Only strategy can be folder-based or with the main folder converted to a Branch, to enable additional visibility features. You commit your changes to the main branch and optionally indicate development and release milestones with labels. C: Development isolation: When you need to maintain and protect a stable main branch, you can branch one or more dev branches from main. It enables isolation and concurrent development. Work can be isolated in development branches by feature, organization, or temporary collaboration.
