NEW QUESTION: 3Your newly appointed Cisco trainee wants to know what the primary functions of an Access Layer in a campus design hierarchy is. What will your reply be? (Choose all that apply.)
A. Provides connectivity to remote offices.
B. Provides connectivity to end-users.
C. Provides route summarization services.
D. Connects shared LAN devices.
E. Provides policy-based routing services.
Answer: A,B,D
Explanation: Access Layer
The access layer provides user access to local segments on the network. The access layer is characterized by switched and shared bandwidth LANs in a campus environment. Microsegmentation, using LAN switches, provides high bandwidth to workgroups by dividing collision domains on Ethernet segments and reducing the number of stations capturing the token on Token Rings LANs. For small office/home office environments, the access layer provides access for remote sites into the corporate networks using WAN technologies such as ISDN, Frame Relay, and leased lines. Features such as dial-on-demand and static routing can be implemented to control costs.
