NEW QUESTION: 1You are troubleshooting a Cisco AnyConnect VPN on a firewall and issue the command "show webvpn anyconnect." The output shows the message "SSL VPN is not enabled" instead of showing the AnyConnect package. Which action can you take to resolve the problem?A. Issue the enable inside command.B. Issue the anyconnect enable command.C. Issue the enable outside command.D. Reinstall the AnyConnect image.Answer: B*Explanation: Configuring the ASA to Web-Deploy the Client The section describes the steps to configure the ASA to web-deploy the AnyConnect client. Detailed Steps
Command Purpose
Step 1 anyconnect image filename order Example: hostname(config-webvpn)#anyconnect image anyconnect-win-2.3.0254-k9.pkg 1 hostname(config-webvpn)#anyconnect image anyconnect-macosx-i386-2.3.0254-k9.pkg 2 hostname(config-webvpn)#anyconnect image anyconnect-linux-2.3.0254-k9.pkg 3
Identifies a file on flash as an AnyConnect client package file. The ASA expands the file in cache memory for downloading to remote PCs. If you have multiple clients, assign an order to the client images with the order argument. The ASA downloads portions of each client in the order you specify until it matches the operating system of the remote PC. Therefore, assign the lowest number to the image used by the most commonly-encountered operating system. Note
You must issue the anyconnect enable command after configuring the AnyConnect images with the anyconnect image xyz command. If you do not enable the anyconnect enable command, AnyConnect will not operate as expected, and show webvpn anyconnect considers the SSL VPN client as not enabled rather than listing the installed AnyConnect packages. Step 2 enable interface Example: hostname(config)# webvpn hostname(config-webvpn)# enable outside Enables SSL on an interface for clientless or AnyConnect SSL connections.
Step 3 anyconnect enable
Without issuing this command, AnyConnect does not function as expected, and a show webvpn anyconnect command returns that the "SSL VPN is not enabled," instead of listing the installed AnyConnect packages.
