NEW QUESTION: 1 In Which way does a spine and-leaf architecture allow for scalability in a network when additional access ports are required?
A. A spine switch and a leaf switch can be added with redundant connections between them
B. A spine switch can be added with at least 40 GB uplinks
C. A leaf switch can be added with connections to every spine switch
D. A leaf switch can be added with a single connection to a core spine switch.
Answer: C
Explanation: Spine-leaf architecture is typically deployed as two layers: spines (such as an aggregation layer), and leaves (such as an access layer). Spine-leaf topologies provide high-bandwidth, low-latency, nonblocking server-to-server connectivity. Leaf (aggregation) switches are what provide devices access to the fabric (the network of spine and leaf switches) and are typically deployed at the top of the rack. Generally, devices connect to the leaf switches. Devices can include servers, Layer 4-7 services (firewalls and load balancers), and WAN or Internet routers. Leaf switches do not connect to other leaf switches. In spine-and-leaf architecture, every leaf should connect to every spine in a full mesh. Spine (aggregation) switches are used to connect to all leaf switches and are typically deployed at the end or middle of the row. Spine switches do not connect to other spine switches.

NEW QUESTION: 2 The solution implementer needs to configure the DataPower appliance to restrict user account access to specific domains. The solution implementer implements this requirement by configuring the Domain Restriction section of the user account. During application execution, the configured user account is able to access a domain that is configured as restricted (no access allowed by this user). What should the solution implementer identify as a valid source of the problem?
A. The user is a member of the 'root' user group.
B. An existing access policy or RBM policy can supersede the Domain Restriction list.
C. User access cannot be restricted to a specific domain in the user account configuration.
D. The RBM system was not used to restrict access, which is the only way to meet the Domain Restriction requirement.
Answer: B

NEW QUESTION: 3 Your network contains an Active Directory domain named contoso.com. The domain contains two servers named Server1 and Server2 that run Windows Server 2016. Server1 has Microsoft System Center 2016 Virtual Machine Manager (VMM) installed. Server2 has IP Address Management (IPAM) installed. You create a domain user named User1. You need to integrate IPAM and VMM. VMM must use the account of User1 to manage IPAM. The solution must use the principle of least privilege. What should you do on each server? To answer, select the appropriate options in the answer area. Answer: Explanation: Explanation On Server1: Create a Run As Account that uses User1. On Server2: Add User1 to IPAM ASM Administrator Role.
