NEW QUESTION: 3Which of the following is not required of a collapsed core layer in a three-tier hierarchical network design?
A. routing and network access policies
B. Layer 2 aggregation
C. intelligent network services
D. end user, group, and endpoint isolation
E. high-speed physical and logical paths
Answer: D
Explanation: Explanation/Reference: Section: Enterprise Network Design Explanation: End user, group, and endpoint isolation is not typically required of a collapsed core layer in a three-tier hierarchical network design. That function is typically provided by the devices in the access layer. The hierarchical model divides the network into three distinct components: Core layer Distribution layer Access layer The access layer provides Network Admission Control (NAC). NAC is a Cisco feature that prevents hosts from accessing the network if they do not comply with organizational requirements, such as having an updated antivirus definition file. NAC Profiler automates NAC by automatically discovering and inventorying devices attached to the LAN. The access layer serves as a media termination point for endpoints, such as servers and hosts. Because access layer devices provide access to the network, the access layer is the ideal place to perform user authentication. Layer 2 aggregation, high-speed physical and logical paths, intelligent network services, and routing and network access policies are typically provided by the core and distribution layers. The core layer typically provides the fastest switching path in the network. As the network backbone, the core layer is primarily associated with low latency and high reliability. The functionality of the core layer can be collapsed into the distribution layer if the distribution layer infrastructure is sufficient to meet the design requirements. It is Cisco best practice to ensure that a collapsed core design can meet resource utilization requirements for the network. The distribution layer serves as an aggregation point for access layer network links. Because the distribution layer is the intermediary between the access layer and the core layer, the distribution layer is the ideal place to enforce security policies, to provide Quality of Service (QoS), and to perform tasks that involve packet manipulation, such as routing. Summarization and next-hop redundancy are also performed in the distribution layer.
