NEW QUESTION: 1A doctor sends patient records to another company for data entry services. A bonded delivery service is used for the transfer. The records are returned to the doctor after entry is complete, using the same delivery service. The entry facility and the network they use are secure. The doctor is named as his own Privacy Officer in written policies. The doctor has written procedures for this process and all involved parties are documented as having been trained in them. The doctor does not have written authorizations to disclose Protected Health Information (PHI). Is the doctor in violation of the Privacy Rule?A. Yes - to be a "routine disclosure" all the parties must have their own Privacy Officer as mandated by HIPAA.B. Yes - a delivery service is not considered a covered entity.C. No - This would be considered an allowed "routine disclosure between the doctor and his business partner."D. Yes - There is no exception to the requirement for an authorization prior to disclosure, no matter how well intentioned or documented.E. Yes - this is not considered a part of "treatment", which is one of the valid exceptions to the Privacy Rule.Answer: C

NEW QUESTION: 2The Trusted Computer Security Evaluation Criteria (TBSEC) providesA. a basis for assessing the effectiveness of security controls built into automatic data-processing system productsB. a system analysis and penetration technique where specifications and document for the system are analyzed.C. a formal static transition model of computer security policy that describes a set of access control rules.D. a means of restricting access to objects based on the identity of subjects and groups to which they belong.Answer: A*Explanation: TBSEC provides guidelines to be used with evaluating a security product. The TBSEC guidelines address basic security functionality and allow evaluators to measure and rate the functionality of a system and how trustworthy it is. Functionality and assurance are combined and not separated, as in criteria developed later. TCSEC guidelines can be used for evaluating vendor products or by vendors to design necessary functionality into new products. CISSP Study Guide by Tittel pg. 413.
