NEW QUESTION: 1The Widget Company decided to take their company public and while they were in the process of doing so had an external auditor come and look at their company. As part of the external audit they brought in a technology expert, who incidentally was a new CISSP. The auditor's expert asked to see their last risk analysis from the technology manager. The technology manager did not get back to him for a few days and then the Chief Financial Officer gave the auditors a 2 page risk assessment that was signed by both the Chief Financial Officer and the Technology Manager. While reviewing it, the auditor noticed that only parts of their financial data were being backed up on site and nowhere else; the Chief Financial Officer accepted the risk of only partial financial data being backed up with no off-site copies available. Who owns the risk with regards to the data that is being backed up and where it is stored?
A. Only The Technology Manager
B. Only the most Senior Management such as the Chief Executive Officer

D. Both the Chief Financial Officer and Technology Manager
Answer: C

Incorrect Answers: B: The most Senior Management such as the Chief Executive Officer does not own the risk. The Chief Financial Officer is responsible for company finances and accepted the risk.
