NEW QUESTION: 1 Refer to the exhibit. Which option describes how a device with this configuration applies traffic matching? A. It matches all traffic that has QoS markings. B. It matches all traffic in ACL 8. C. It matches all traffic in ACL 8 and all traffic that has a DSCP marking of EF. D. It matches all traffic in ACL 8 that has a DSCP marking of EF. E. It matches all traffic that has a DSCP marking of EF. Answer: C

NEW QUESTION: 2 Your network contains one Active Directory forest that has a root domain and three child domains. All domain controllers run Windows Server 2003 Service Pack 1 (SP1). Each domain has a different password policy. The domain is configured as shown in the exhibit. You plan to reduce the number of domains in the forest. You need to plan the restructuring of the forest to meet the following requirements: - Maintain all existing password policies. - Maintain all existing user account attributes. What should you include in your plan? Exhibit: A. Upgrade all domains to Windows Server 2008 and enable SID history. Move all user accounts from the child domains to the root domain by using the movetree.exe tool, and then remove the child domains. B. Upgrade the forest root domain to Windows Server 2008. Use the Active Directory Migration Tool (ADMT) to migrate user accounts from the child domains to the forest root domain, and then remove the child domains. Enable fine-grained password policies. C. Upgrade all domains to Windows Server 2008. Redirect the users container in the root domain by using the redirusr.exe tool, and then remove the child domains. Enable fine-grained password policies. D. Upgrade the forest root domain to Windows Server 2008. Use the Active Directory Migration Tool (ADMT) to migrate user accounts that contain SID history from the child domains to the forest root domain. Remove the child domains. Answer: B Explanation: ADMT + fine-grained The Active Directory Migration Tool version 3 (ADMT v3) simplifies the process of restructuring your operating environment to meet the needs of your organization. You can use ADMT v3 to migrate users, groups, and computers from Microsoft@ Windows NT@ 4.0 domains to Active Directory@ directory service domains; between Active Directory domains in different forests (interforest migration); and between Active Directory domains in the same forest (intraforest migration). ADMT v3 also performs security translation from Windows NT 4.0

domains to Active Directory domains and between Active Directory domains in different forests. The Windows Server@ 2008 operating system provides organizations with a way to define different password and account lockout policies for different sets of users in a domain. In Microsoft@ Windows@ 2000 and Windows Server@ 2003 Active Directory domains, only one password policy and account lockout policy could be applied to all users in the domain. These policies were specified in the Default Domain Policy for the domain. As a result, organizations that wanted different password and account lockout settings for different sets of users had to either create a password filter or deploy multiple domains. Both options are costly for different reasons.
