NOTE: Each correct selection is worth one point. A. Export the staging version of the Language and Understanding (LUIS) app B. Deploy an Azure an Azure Container Service cluster to the West Europe region C. Export the production version of the Language Understanding (LUIS) app D. Deploy an Azure Kubernetes Service (AKS) cluster to the East US 2 region E. Deploy a Kubernetes cluster to Azure Stack F. Get the docker image from `mcr.microsoft.com/azure-cognitive-services/sentiment:latest` G. Get the docker image from `mcr.microsoft.com/azure-cognitive-services/luis:latest`
Answer: A, E, G
Explanation: Scenario: Data scientists must test Butler by using ASDK. Note: Contoso wants to provide a new version of the Bookings app that will provide a highly available, reliable service for booking travel packages by interacting with a chatbot named Butler. E: The ASDK (Azure Stack Development Kit) is meant to provide an environment in which you can evaluate Azure Stack and develop modern applications using APIs and tooling consistent with Azure in a nonproduction environment. Microsoft Azure Stack integrated systems range in size from 4-16 nodes, and are jointly supported by a hardware partner and Microsoft. F: The Language Understanding (LUIS) container loads your trained or published Language Understanding model, also known as a LUIS app, into a docker container and provides access to the query predictions from the container's API endpoints. Use the docker pull command to download a container image from the `mcr.microsoft.com/azure-cognitiveservices/luis` repository: `docker pull mcr.microsoft.com/azure-cognitive-services/luis:latest` G: You can test using the endpoint with a maximum of two versions of your app. With your main or live version of your app set as the production endpoint, add a second version to the staging endpoint.
