NEW QUESTION: 2 When reviewing the configuration of network devices, an IS auditor should FIRST identify: A. whether subcomponents of the network are being used appropriately. B. the importance of the network device in the topology. C. the best practices for the type of network devices deployed. D. whether components of the network are missing. Answer: B
Explanation: Explanation/Reference: Explanation: The first step is to understand the importance and role of the network device within the organization's network topology. After understanding the devices in the network, the best practice for using the device should be reviewed to ensure that there are no anomalies within the configuration. Identification of which component or subcomponent is missing or being used inappropriately can only be known upon reviewing and understanding the topology and the best practice for deployment of the device in the network.

NEW QUESTION: 3 You have a Hyper-V failover cluster that consists of three nodes. Virtual machines are distributed evenly across the nodes. You plan to restart each node during the upcoming week. You need to ensure that after each restart, the virtual machines will be evenly distributed across the cluster. The solution must minimize the number of times the virtual machines are live-migrated across the nodes. What should you configure? To answer, select the appropriate options in the answer area. NOTE: Each correct selection is worth one point.

Answer: Explanation: Explanation Box 1: 1 (Low) Move VM when host is more than 80% loaded. The solution must minimize the number of times the virtual machines are live-migrated across the nodes. Box 2: 1 (Load balance on node join) After each restart, the virtual machines will be evenly distributed across the cluster. The solution must minimize the number of times the virtual machines are live-migrated across the nodes.
