NEW QUESTION: 1 Which of the following is defined as an occasion when an employer offers an employee some form of reward for completing an action, and then fails to follow through with that reward?
A. Fraudulent misrepresentation
B. Promissory estoppel
C. Duty of good faith
D. Constructive discharge
Answer: B
Explanation: Explanation: A promissory estoppel is defined as an occasion when an employer offers an employee some form of reward for completing an action, and then fails to follow through with that reward. Fraudulent misrepresentation is similar but is defined more broadly as any sort of promise made to a candidate to persuade him to take a position with the company (followed by a failure to act on this promise). Constructive discharge is defined as an employee's decision to quit when an employer creates hostile working conditions. Duty of good faith is simply a tradition of common law by which those who work together are expected to behave in all fairness and honesty toward one another.

NEW QUESTION: 2 Which tool provides information about HP storage products, the competition, and where-to sell scenarios?
A. HP Product Bulletin
B. HP Sales Builder for Windows (SBW)
C. HP Storage SAN Design Reference Guide
D. HP Storage Product Reference Guide
Answer: A

NEW QUESTION: 3 You enable Sweep Scan Protection and Host port scan in IPS to determine if a large amount of traffic from a specific internal IP address is a network attack, or a user's system is infected with a worm. Will you get all the information you need from these actions?
A. Yes. IPS will limit the traffic impact from the scans, and identify if the pattern of the traffic matches any known worms.
B. No. To verify if this is a worm or an active attack, you must also enable TCP attack defenses.
C. No. The logs and alert can provide some level of information, but determining whether the attack is intentional or a worm, requires further research.
D. No. These IPS protections will only block the traffic, but it will not provide a detailed analysis of the traffic.
Answer: C
