NEW QUESTION: 4In SSL/TLS protocol, what kind of authentication is supported?A. Server authentication (mandatory) and client authentication (optional)B. Role based authentication schemeC. Peer-to-peer authenticationD. Only server authentication (optional)Answer: A Explanation:"The server sends a message back to the client indicating that a secure session needs to be established, and the client sends it security parameters. The server compares those security parameters to its own until it finds a match. This is the handshaking phase. The server authenticates to the client by sending it a digital certificate, and if the client decides to trust the server the process continues. The server can require the client to send over a digital certificate for mutual authentication, but that is rare."Pg. 523 Shon Harris: All-In-One CISSP Certification Exam Guide
