NEW QUESTION: 1 Foy Corp. failed to accrue warranty costs of $50,000 in its December 31, 1992, financial statements. In addition, a $30,000 change from straight-line to accelerated depreciation was made at the beginning of 1993. Both the $50,000 and the $30,000 are net of related income taxes. What amount should Foy report as prior period adjustments in 1993? A. $0 B. $30,000 C. $50,000 D. $80,000 Answer: C Explanation: Choice "c" is correct. $50,000. The cumulative effect of a change in accounting principle is now shown on the retained earnings statement as an adjustment to the beginning balance of retained earnings, assuming that the cumulative effect can be calculated. An exception is made however, for a change in depreciation method, since a change in depreciation method is no longer considered to be a change in accounting principle. A change in depreciation method is now considered to be both a change in method and a change in estimate. These changes should now be accounted for as a change in estimate and handled prospectively. The new depreciation method should be used as of the beginning of the year of change and should start with the current book value of the underlying asset. No retroactive or retrospective calculations should be made, and no adjustment should be made to retained earnings. The correction of the failure to accrue warranty costs is treated as a correction of an error and thus as a prior period adjustment. Choices "a", "b", and "d" are incorrect, per the above Explanation: .
