NEW QUESTION: 3Which of the following can best be defined as a key distribution protocol that uses hybrid encryption to convey session keys. This protocol establishes a long-term key once, and then requires no prior communication in order to establish or exchange keys on a session-by-session basis?A. IPsec Key exchange (IKE)B. Diffie-Hellman Key Distribution ProtocolC. Simple Key-management for Internet Protocols (SKIP)D. Internet Security Association and Key Management Protocol (ISAKMP)Answer: C*Explanation:RFC 2828 (Internet Security Glossary) defines Simple Key Management for Internet Protocols (SKIP) as:A key distribution protocol that uses hybrid encryption to convey session keys that are used to encrypt data in IP packets.SKIP is an hybrid Key distribution protocol similar to SSL, except that it establishes a long-term key once, and then requires no prior communication in order to establish or exchange keys on a session-by-session basis. Therefore, no connection setup overhead exists and new keys values are not continually generated. SKIP uses the knowledge of its own secret key or private component and the destination's public component to calculate a unique key that can only be used between them. IKE stand for Internet Key Exchange, it makes use of ISAKMP and OAKLEY internally. Internet Key Exchange (IKE or IKEv2) is the protocol used to set up a security association (SA) in the IPsec protocol suite. IKE builds upon the Oakley protocol and ISAKMP. IKE uses X.509 certificates for authentication and a Diffie-Hellman key exchange to set up a shared session secret from which cryptographic keys are derived. The following are incorrect answers: ISAKMP is an Internet IPsec protocol to negotiate, establish, modify, and delete security associations, and to exchange key generation and authentication data, independent of the details of any specific key generation technique, key establishment protocol, encryption algorithm, or authentication mechanism. IKE is an Internet, IPsec, key-establishment protocol (partly based on OAKLEY) that is intended for putting in place authenticated keying material for use with ISAKMP and for other security associations, such as in AH and ESP. IPsec Key exchange (IKE) is only a detractor.
