SQL1 has eight CPUs, 8 GB of RAM, RAID-10 storage, and a 10-gigabit Ethernet connection.A package named Package1 runs on SQL1. Package1 contains 10 data tasks. Package1 queries 3 GB of data from the source system.You review the performance statistics on SQL1 and discover that Package1 executes slower than expected.You need to identify the problem that is causing Package1 to execute slowly.Which performance monitor counter data should you review?A. Processor% User TimeB. Processor% Idle TimeC. MemoryPages/secD. SQLServer:SSIS Pipeline 10.0:Buffers in useAnswer: AExplanation:Explanation/Reference:The Processor: % User Time value "Corresponds to the percentage of time that the processor spends on executing user processes such as SQL Server." In other words, this is the percentage of processor non-idle time spent on user processes If the Processor:% User Time high values are caused by SQL Server, the reason can be non-optimal SQL Server configuration, excessive querying, schema issues, etc. Further troubleshooting requires finding the process or batch that uses so much processor time References: https://www.sqlshack.com/sql-server-processor-performance-metrics-part-2-processor-user-time-processor-privilege-time-total-times-thread-metrics/

NEW QUESTION: 2 In which of the following can a user access resources according to his role in the organization?A. Network-based access controlB. Discretionary access controlC. Mandatory Access ControlD. Role-based access controlAnswer: DExplanation:Role-based access control (RBAC) is an access control model. In this model, a user can access resources according to his role in the organization. For example, a backup administrator is responsible for taking backups of important data. Therefore, he is only authorized to access this data for backing it up. However, sometimes users with different roles need to access the same resources. This situation can also be handled using the RBAC model.Answer option A is incorrect. Discretionary access control (DAC) is an access policy determined by the owner of an object. The owner decides who is allowed to access the object and what privileges they have.Two important concepts in DAC are as follows:File and data ownership: Every object in the system has an owner. In most DAC systems, each object's initial owner is the subject that caused it to be created. The access policy for an object is determined by its owner.Access rights and permissions: These are the controls that an owner can assign to other subjects for specific resources.Access controls may be discretionary in ACL-based or capability-based access control systems.Note: In capability-based systems, there is no explicit concept of owner, but the creator of an object has a similar degree of control over its access policy.Answer option D is incorrect. Mandatory Access Control (MAC) is a model that uses a predefined set of access privileges for an object of the system. Access to an object is restricted on the basis of the sensitivity of the object and granted through authorization. Sensitivity of an object is defined by the label assigned to it. For example, if a user receives a copy of an object that is marked as "secret", he cannot grant permission to other users to see this object unless they have the appropriate permission.Answer option B is incorrect. There in no such access control as Network-based access control (NBAC).
