NEW QUESTION: 4Which of the following system and data conversion strategies provides the GREATEST redundancy?A. Pilot studyB. Direct cutoverC. Phased approachD. Parallel run

Answer: DExplanation:Explanation/Reference:Explanation:Parallel runs are the safest-though the most expensive-approach, because both the old and new systems are run, thus incurring what might appear to be double costs. Direct cutover is actually quite risky, since it does not provide for a 'shake down period' nor does it provide an easy fallback option. Both a pilot study and a phased approach are performed incrementally, making rollback procedures difficult to execute.
