NEW QUESTION: 1When an auditor is to conduct an audit of a service organization, what considerations should the auditor make in the planning stages regarding internal controls of the organization?A. The auditor should be engaged to perform agreed-upon procedures.B. The auditor should assess the control risk before obtaining an understanding of internal controls.C. The auditor should obtain an understanding of the effect of the user organization upon the service organization.D. The auditor should obtain an understanding of the entity's internal controls after performing substantive procedures.Answer: CExplanation:

Explanation/Reference:Explanation:Choice "C" is correct. In some situations, the controls at a service organization are designed under the assumption that there will be certain complementary controls implemented by user organizations. These complementary controls should be included in the description of controls. The service auditor should obtain an understanding of such situations, in order to evaluate whether the complementary controls are necessary to achieve stated control objectives. Choice "A" is incorrect. The auditor would need to understand controls before assessing their operating effectiveness. Choice "B" is incorrect. Substantive procedures are not performed by a service auditor, who is either reporting on controls placed in operation, or on controls placed in operation and their operating effectiveness. Remember that a service auditor's engagement is not the same as an audit of financial statements. Choice "D" is incorrect. Although a service auditor's engagement differs from an audit of financial statements, it is performed in accordance with the general standards as well as the relevant fieldwork and reporting standards. It is not considered to be an agreed-upon procedures engagement, as the auditor has not been engaged by the service organization to issue a report of findings based on specific, agreed-on procedures.

NEW QUESTION: 2 Which feature of Cisco AnyConnect allows pre-login authentication using windows machines, or single sign-on user authentication using Windows logon credentials? A. Differentiated Mobile Access B. Flexible AAA Options C. Trusted Network Detection D. Secure Layer-2 Network Access Answer: D

NEW QUESTION: 3 A user indicated that after their voicemail account was created recently the red light on the phone handset did not illuminate when they received a new voicemail message. Which description of the problem is true? A. The voicemail action must be changed to "Accept the Message" in the Message Actions section for the user account in the CUx Administration web interface B. The SMTP address for the user is missing in the User Basics page of the user account in the CUx Administration web interface C. The user extension is improperly formatted in the User Basics page for the user account in the CUx Administration web interface D. The MWI number overlapped with the existing dial plan within Cisco Unified Communications Manager Answer: D

NEW QUESTION: 4 You are selecting RAM for a new PC. You are very concerned about making sure errors are handled. Which of the following types of RAM should you select? A. Rambus B. ECC RAM C. Logic Parity RAM D. Non Parity RAM Answer: B Explanation: Parity RAM can indeed handle error correction, however is not supported in most new computers. ECC is supported. What is ECC memory module? An Error Correcting Code (ECC) memory module detects and corrects single-bit errors in memory. It helps a computer to continue working without interruption and data corruption. Although ECC can detect both single-bit and double-bit errors, it can only correct single-bit errors. As most memory errors are of a single-bit nature, ECC provides high system reliability and attendant availability. An ECC-based computer is a good choice for servers. Answer option B is incorrect. Non parity RAM offers no error checking at all. Answer option D is incorrect. Logic Parity is a mechanism whereby a non parity RAM chip can simulate parity. Answer option A is incorrect. Rambus is unrelated to the issue of parity. What is RIMM? Rambus Inline Memory Module (RIMM) is a type of memory that has 184 pins. It was developed by Rambus, Intel, and Kingston. This module only supports Rambus memory and fits on its own slot. Reference: RAM Parity <http://www.answers.com/topic/non-parity-memory>
