NEW QUESTION: 1 Which two categories should be used for requirements in the Fit Gap Analysis spreadsheet? (Each correct answer presents part of the solution. Choose two.)A. gapB. additional purchaseC. standard featureD. configurationAnswer: C, D*Explanation: * After completing the first round of Fit Gap Analysis, you get two figures: the degree of fit expressed in percentages, and the total estimate of the number of hours used for configuration, customization and deployment of ISV add-ons. * If the degree of fit is high, but the budget is still not reached, you can even skip the configuration features. Even though a requirement can be met with a standard feature through configuration, if that configuration is taking a lot of time, you might decide to skip it, especially if the importance is fairly low.
