NEW QUESTION: 1 For maximum security design, what type of fence is most effective and cost-effective method (Foot is being used as measurement unit below)?
A. Double fencing
B. 3' to 4' high.
C. 6' to 7' high.
D. 8' high and above with strands of barbed wire.
Answer: D
Explanation: Explanation/Reference: Explanation: Fences come in varying heights, and each height provides a different level of security: Fences three to four feet high only deter casual trespassers. Fences six to seven feet high are considered too high to climb easily. Fences eight feet high (possibly with strands of barbed or razor wire at the top) means you are serious about protecting your property. They often deter the more determined intruder. The barbed wire on top of fences can be tilted in or out, which also provides extra protection. If the organization is a prison, it would have the barbed wire on top of the fencing pointed in, which makes it harder for prisoners to climb and escape. If the organization is a military base, the barbed wire would be tilted out, making it harder for someone to climb over the fence and gain access to the premises. Critical areas should have fences at least eight feet high to provide the proper level of protection. The fencing should not sag in any areas and must be taut and securely connected to the posts. The fencing should not be easily circumvented by pulling up its posts. The posts should be buried sufficiently deep in the ground and should be secured with concrete to ensure the posts cannot be dug up or tied to vehicles and extracted. If the ground is soft or uneven, this might provide ways for intruders to slip or dig under the fence. In these situations, the fencing should actually extend into the dirt to thwart these types of attacks.
Incorrect Answers:
A: Fences three to four feet high only deter casual trespassers. They are not the most effective maximum security design. Therefore, this answer is incorrect.
B: Fences six to seven feet high are considered too high to climb easily. They are not the most effective maximum security design. Therefore, this answer is incorrect.
D: Double fencing is not the most cost effective maximum security design. Two fences would cost more than one good fence. Furthermore, this answer does not state how high the two fences are. Two 3' to 4' fences would not be very secure. Therefore, this answer is incorrect. References: Harris, Shon, All In One CISSP Exam Guide, 6th Edition, McGraw-Hill, 2013, p. 486

NEW QUESTION: 2 You are designing a table for a SQL Server database. The table uses horizontal partitioning. You have the following requirements: You need to choose the appropriate data type for the key value. What should you do? A. Use the NEWSEQUENTIALID function to create a unique identifier. B. Use the NEWID function to create a unique identifier. C. Generate a random value that uses the bigint datatype. D. Generate a random value that uses the char(16) data type. Answer: A Explanation: Horizontal partitioning divides a table into multiple tables. Each table then contains the same number of columns, but fewer rows. For example, a table that contains 1 billion rows could be partitioned horizontally into 12 tables, with each smaller table representing one month of data for a specific year. Any queries requiring data for a specific month only reference the appropriate table. NEWSEQUENTIALID creates a GUID that is greater than any GUID previously generated by this function on a specified computer since Windows was started. After restarting Windows, the GUID can start again from a lower range, but is still globally unique. When a GUID column is used as a row identifier, using NEWSEQUENTIALID can be faster than using the NEWID function. This is because the NEWID function causes random activity and uses fewer cached data pages. Using NEWSEQUENTIALID also helps to completely fill the data and index pages.
