NEW QUESTION: 1 Wenn wir Informationen für die Stimme des Geschäfts sammeln, sind wir hauptsächlich an Informationen über das _____ des Geschäfts interessiert.
A. Werbebudget
B. Eigentum
C. Marktanteil
D. Rentabilität
Answer: D

NEW QUESTION: 2 Which of the following is defined as the most recent point in time to which data must be synchronized without adversely affecting the organization (financial or operational impacts)?
A. Recovery Point Objective
B. Critical Time Objective
C. Point of Time Objective
D. Recovery Time Objective
Answer: A
Explanation: Explanation/Reference: The recovery point objective (RPO) is the maximum acceptable level of data loss following an unplanned "event", like a disaster (natural or man-made), act of crime or terrorism, or any other business or technical disruption that could cause such data loss. The RPO represents the point in time, prior to such an event or incident, to which lost data can be recovered (given the most recent backup copy of the data). The recovery time objective (RTO) is a period of time within which business and / or technology capabilities must be restored following an unplanned event or disaster. The RTO is a function of the extent to which the interruption disrupts normal operations and the amount of revenue lost per unit of time as a result of the disaster. These factors in turn depend on the affected equipment and application(s). Both of these numbers represent key targets that are set by key businesses during business continuity and disaster recovery planning; these targets in turn drive the technology and implementation choices for business resumption services, backup / recovery / archival services, and recovery facilities and procedures. Many organizations put the cart before the horse in selecting and deploying technologies before understanding the business needs as expressed in RPO and RTO; IT departments later bear the brunt of user complaints that their service expectations are not being met. Defining the RPO and RTO can avoid that pitfall, and in doing so can also make for a compelling business case for recovery technology spending and staffing. For the CISSP candidate studying for the exam, there are no such objectives for "point of time," and "critical time." Those two answers are simply detractors.

NEW QUESTION: 4 Joe, the system administrator, is performing an overnight system refresh of hundreds of user computers. The refresh has a strict timeframe and must have zero downtime during business hours. Which of the following should Joe take into consideration?A. A plan that skips every other replaced computer to limit the area of affected users.B. A disk-based image of every computer as they are being replaced.C. An offsite contingency server farm that can act as a warm site should any issues appear.D. A back-out strategy planned out anticipating any unforeseen problems that may arise.Answer: DExplanation:A backout is a reversion from a change that had negative consequences. It could be, for example, that everything was working fine until you installed a service pack on a production machine, and then services that were normally available were no longer accessible. The backout, in this instance, would revert the system to the state that it was in before the service pack was applied. Backout plans can include uninstalling service packs, hotfixes, and patches, but they can also include reversing a migration and using previous firmware. A key component to creating such a plan is identifying what events will trigger your implementing the backout.
