NEW QUESTION: 3A company is running an email application across multiple AWS Regions. The company uses Ohio (us-east-2) as the primary Region and Northern Virginia (us-east-1) as the Disaster Recovery (DR) Region. The data is continuously replicated from the primary Region to the DR Region by a single instance on the public subnet in both Regions. The replication messages between the Regions have a significant backlog during certain times of the day. The backlog clears on its own after a short time, but it affects the application's RPO.Which of the following solutions should help remediate this performance problem? (Select TWO)A. Increase the size of the instances.B. Change the DR Region to Oregon (us-west-2) instead of the current DR Region.C. Use multiple instances on the primary and DR Regions to send and receive the replication data.D. Have the instance in the primary Region write the data to an Amazon SQS queue in the primary Region instead, and have the instance in the DR Region poll from this queue.E. Attach an additional elastic network interface to each of the instances in both Regions and set up load balancing between the network interfaces.Answer: C,D*Explanation:The problem here is the question did not state why is the replication slow? Is it network or compute?A/C: This will address the network or compute shortages.B: Not sure if this is feasible since this is an email application. Also assuming that both instances are of the same size, would this help if it is the network that is congested?D: Not feasible.E: Load balancing is not possible.
