NEW QUESTION: 1The difference between a vulnerability assessment and a penetration test is that a vulnerability assessment:A. searches and checks the infrastructure to detect vulnerabilities, whereas penetration testing intends to exploit the vulnerabilities to probe the damage that could result from the vulnerabilities.B. is executed by commercial tools, whereas penetration testing is executed by public processes.C. and penetration tests are different names for the same activity.D. is executed by automated tools, whereas penetration testing is a totally manual process.Answer: A
Explanation:Explanation/Reference:Explanation:The objective of a vulnerability assessment is to find the security holds in the computers and elements analyzed; its intent is not to damage the infrastructure. The intent of penetration testing is to imitate a hacker's activities and determine how far they could go into the network. They are not the same; they have different approaches. Vulnerability assessments and penetration testing can be executed by automated or manual tools or processes and can be executed by commercial or free tools.

NEW QUESTION: 3Which of the following statements pertaining to packet switching is incorrect?A. All packets from a message travel through the same route.B. Most data sent today uses digital signals over network employing packet switching.C. Messages are divided into packets.D. Each network node or point examines each packet for routing.Answer: A
Explanation:When using packet switching, messages are broken down into packets.Source and destination address are added to each packet so that when passing through a network node, they can be examined and eventually rerouted through different paths as conditions change. All message packets may travel different paths and not arrive in the same order as sent. Packets need to be collected and reassembled into the original message at destination.Source: TIPTON, Hal, (ISC)2, Introduction to the CISSP Exam presentation.
