Both services provide different benefits for developers. Amazon SNS allows applications to send time-critical messages to multiple subscribers through a "push" mechanism, which eliminates the need to periodically check or "poll" for updates. Amazon SQS is a message queue service used by distributed applications to exchange messages through a polling model and can be used to decouple sending and receiving components without requiring each component to be concurrently available. By using Amazon SNS and Amazon SQS together, messages can be delivered to applications that require immediate notification of an event and also persisted in an Amazon SQS queue for other applications to process at a later time.
