On all of the computers, configure a custom task in the Forwarded Events log.B. On all the computers, configure an event subscription to a central computer. On the central computer, configure a custom task in the Forwarded Events log.C. On a computer, configure a custom view to display the application errors. Configure a custom task for the application error events.D. On all the computers, configure a custom view. Configure a custom task for the application error events.Answer: B*Explanation:Event ForwardingEvent forwarding enables you to transfer events that match specific criteria to an administrative (or collector) computer. This enables you to manage events centrally. A single event log on the collector computer holds important events from computers anywhere in your organization. You do not need to connect to the local event logs on individual computers. SubscriptionsIn a source-initiated subscription (sometimes termed a source computer-initiated subscription), the computer on which an event is generated (the source computer) sends the event to the collector computer. You would use a source-initiated subscription when you have a large number of source computers and you configure these computers through Group Policy.

Some questions sets might have more than one correct solutions, while others might not have a correct solution. After you answer a question in this section, you will NOT be able to return to it. As a result, these questions will not appear in the review screen. Your network contains an Active Directory forest named contoso.com. The forest contains a member server named Server1 that runs Windows Server 2016. All domain controllers run Windows Server 2012R2. Contoso.com has the following configuration. You plan to deploy an Active Directory Federation Services (AD FS) farm on Server1 and to configure device registration. You need to configure Active Directory to support the planned deployment. Solution: You upgrade a domain controller to Windows Server 2016. Does this meet the goal? A. No B. Yes Answer: B Explanation: Explanation/Reference: Explanation: New installations of AD FS 2016 require the Active Directory 2016 schema (minimum version 85). Upgrading a domain controller will upgrade the schema. Note: upgrading the schema is not the same as upgrading the domain for forest functional level. Upgrading the functional level is not required.
