NEW QUESTION: 1 Your network contains an Active Directory domain named contoso.com. The domain contains two servers named Server1 and Server2. Both servers run Windows Server 2012. Both servers have the File and Storage Services server role, the DFS Namespace role service, and the DFS Replication role service installed. Server1 and Server2 are part of a Distributed File System (DFS) Replication group named Group1. Server1 and Server2 are connected by using a high-speed LAN connection. You need to minimize the amount of processor resources consumed by DFS Replication. What should you do? A. Reduce the bandwidth usage. B. Modify the replication schedule. C. Disable Remote Differential Compression (RDC). D. Modify the staging quota. Answer: C Explanation: B. Because disabling RDC can help conserve disk input/output (I/O) and CPU resources, you might want to disable RDC on a connection if the sending and receiving members are in a local area network (LAN), and bandwidth use is not a concern. However, in a LAN environment where bandwidth is contended, RDC can be beneficial when transferring large files. En nuestro caso la conectividad es de alta velocidad <http://technet.microsoft.com/en-us/library/cc758825%28v=ws.10%29.aspx> C. DFS Replication uses staging folders for each replicated folder to act as caches for new and changed files that are ready to be replicated from sending members to receiving members. These files are stored under the local path of the replicated folder in the DfsrPrivateStaging folder. If a staging folder quota is too small, DFS Replication might consume additional CPU and disk resources, and replication might slow down or even stop. By default, the quota size of each staging folder is 4,096 MB, and the quota size of each Conflict and Deleted folder is 660 MB. The size of each folder on a member is cumulative per volume, so if there are multiple replicated folders on a member, DFS Replication creates multiple staging and Conflict and Deleted folders, each with its own quota. Aquí no se menciona nada de que la replicación este siendo lenta ni que se este parando. <http://technet.microsoft.com/en-us/library/cc754229.aspx>

Fixed price and purchase order are the best choice for buyer when the item is well defined.
