NEW QUESTION: 1 DevOpsエンジニアには、出荷注文を受け取り、在庫を追跡する単一のAmazon DynamoDBテーブルがあります。エンジニアには、そのテーブルのDynamoDBストリームから読み取る3つのAWS Lambda関数があります。Lambda関数は、アイテムのカウント、Amazon Kinesis Data

Firehoseへのアイテムの移動、在庫レベルのモニタリング、部品が少ない場合のベンダー注文の作成など、さまざまな機能を実行します。ログを確認しているときに、エンジニアは、負荷が増加するとLambda関数が失敗することがあり、ストリーム調整エラーを受け取ることに気付きました。最低限の運用管理を必要とする最も費用効果の高いソリューションはどれですか？ A.

4番目のLambda関数を作成し、ストリームから読み取る唯一のLambdaになるように構成します。次に、このLambda関数を使用して、ペイロードを他の3つのLambda関数に渡します。 B. Lambda関数にテーブルを直接クエリさせ、DynamoDBストリームを無効にする。次に、Lambda関数にグローバルセカンダリインデックスからクエリを実行させます。 C.

DynamoDBストリームの代わりにAmazon

Kinesisストリームを使用し、次にKinesisアナリティクスを使用してLambda関数をトリガーします。 D. AWS Glue統合を使用してDynamoDBストリームを取り込み、LambdaコードをAWS Fargateタスクに移行します。 Answer: A

NEW QUESTION: 2 A newspaper organization has an on-premises application which allows the public to search its back catalogue and retrieve individual newspaper pages via a website written in Java. They have scanned the old newspapers into JPEGs (approx 17TB) and used Optical Character Recognition (OCR) to populate a commercial search product. The hosting platform and software are now end of life and the organization wants to migrate its archive to AWS and produce a cost efficient architecture and still be designed for availability and durability. Which is the most appropriate? A. Use a CloudFront download distribution to serve the JPEGs to the end users and install the current commercial search product, along with a Java Container for the website on EC2 instances and use Route53 with DNS round-robin. B. Use a single-AZ RDS MySQL instance to store the search index and the JPEG images use an EC2 instance to serve the website and translate user queries into SQL. C. Use S3 with reduced redundancy to store and serve the scanned files, install the commercial search application on EC2 instances and configure with auto-scaling and an Elastic Load Balancer. D. Use S3 with standard redundancy to store and serve the scanned files, use CloudSearch for query processing, and use Elastic Beanstalk to host the website across multiple availability zones. E. Model the environment using CloudFormation use an EC2 instance running Apache webserver and an open source search application, stripe multiple standard EBS volumes together to store the JPEGs and search index. Answer: D Explanation: Explanation/Reference: Explanation: There is no such thing as "Most appropriate" without knowing all your goals. I find your scenarios very fuzzy, since you can obviously mix-n-match between them. I think you should decide by layers instead: Load Balancer Layer: ELB or just DNS, or roll-your-own. (Using DNS+EIPs is slightly cheaper, but less reliable than ELB.) Storage Layer for 17TB of Images: This is the perfect use case for S3. Off-load all the web requests directly to the relevant JPEGs in S3. Your EC2 boxes just generate links to them. If your app already serves it's own images (not links to images), you might start with EFS. But more than likely, you can just setup a web server to re-write or re-direct all JPEG links to S3 pretty easily. If you use S3, don't serve directly from the bucket - Serve via a CNAME in domain you control. That way, you can switch in CloudFront easily. EBS will be way more expensive, and you'll need 2x the drives if you need 2 boxes. Yuck. Consider a smaller storage format. For example, JPEG200 or WebP or other tools might make for smaller images. There is also the DejaVu format from a while back. Cache Layer: Adding CloudFront in front of S3 will help people on the other side of the world -- well, possibly. Typical archives follow a power law. The long tail of requests means that most JPEGs won't be requested enough to be in the cache. So you are only speeding up the most popular objects. You can always wait, and switch in CF later after you know your costs better. (In some cases, it can actually lower costs.) You can also put CloudFront in front of your app, since your archive search results should be fairly static. This will also allow you to run with a smaller instance type, since CF will handle much of the load if you do it right. Database Layer: A few options: Use whatever your current server does for now, and replace with something else down the road. Don't under-estimate this approach, sometimes it's better to start now and optimize later. Use RDS to run MySQL/Postgres! I'm not as familiar with Elasticsearch / Cloudsearch, but obviously Cloudsearch will be less maintenance+setup. App Layer: When creating the app layer from scratch, consider CloudFormation and/or OpsWorks. It's extra stuff to learn, but helps down the road. Java+Tomcat is right up the alley of ElasticBeanstalk. (Basically EC2 + Autoscale + ELB). Preventing Abuse: When you put something in a public S3 bucket, people will hot-link it from their web pages. If you want to prevent that, your app on the EC2 box can generate signed links to S3 that expire in a few hours. Now everyone will be forced to go thru the app, and the app can apply rate limiting, etc. Saving money: If you don't mind having downtime: run everything in one AZ (both DBs and EC2s). You can always add servers and AZs down the road, as long as it's architected to be stateless. In fact, you should use multiple regions if you want it to be really robust. use Reduced Redundancy in S3 to save a few hundred bucks per month (Someone will have to "go fix it" every time it breaks, including having an off-line copy to repair S3.) Buy Reserved Instances on your EC2 boxes to make them cheaper. (Start with the RI market and buy a partially used one to get started.) It's just a coupon saying "if you run this type of box in this AZ, you will save on the per-hour costs." You can get 1/2 to 1/3 off easily. Rewrite the application to use less memory and CPU - that way you can run on fewer/smaller boxes. (May or may not be worth the investment.) If your app will be used very infrequently, you will save a lot of money by using Lambda. I'd be worried that it would be quite slow if you tried to run a Java application on it though. We're missing some information like load, latency expectations from search, indexing speed, size of the search index, etc. But with what you've given us, I would go with S3 as the storage for the files (S3 rocks. It is really, really awesome). If you're stuck with the commercial search application, then on EC2 instances with autoscaling and an ELB. If you are allowed an alternative search engine, Elasticsearch is probably your best bet. I'd run it on EC2 instead of the AWS Elasticsearch service, as IMHO it's not ready yet. Don't autoscale Elasticsearch automatically though, it'll cause all sorts of issues. I have zero experience with CloudSearch so I can't comment on that. Regardless of which option, I'd use CloudFormation for all of it.

NEW QUESTION: 3 You administer a Microsoft SQL Server 2012 instance that has several SQL Server Agent jobs configured. When SQL Server Agent jobs fail, the error messages returned by the job steps do not provide the required detail. The following error message is an example error message: "The job failed. The Job was invoked by User CONTOSO\ServiceAccount. The last step to run was step 1(Subplan_1)." You need to ensure that all available details of the job step failures for SQL Server Agent jobs are retained. What should you do? A. Configure output files. B. Disable the Limit size of job history log feature. C. Configure event forwarding. D. Expand agent logging to include information from all events. Answer: A Explanation: --Burgos - NO Reference: <http://msdn.microsoft.com/en-us/library/ms175488.aspx>
