Answer: C,EEExplanation:As customer expectations and demands rise, network operations teams are focusing on IT service-quality improvement and achieving higher levels of availability by re-examining processes and procedures-particularly in the area of change management-because changes to the network are often a source of downtime.Reference: http://www.cisco.com/en/US/technologies/collateral/tk869/tk769/white\_paper\_c11458050.html

ネットワーク管理者がNetflowをネットワークに実装する前に考慮しなければならない3つの要因は何ですか？（3つ選んでください。） A. SNMPバージョンB. ポートの可用性C. CPU使用率D.

Netflowデータをエクスポートしているデバイスの数E. Netflowデータが送信される場所F.

WANカプセル化Answer: C,D,EEExplanation:NetFlow has a reputation for increasing CPU utilization on your network devices. Cisco's performance testing seems to indicate that newer hardware can accommodate this load pretty well, but you will still want to check it out before you turn on the feature. Some symptoms of high CPU utilization are very large jitter and increased delay. Services running on the device may also be affected.Another thing to keep in mind is the amount of data you're going to be sending across the network.Depending on how much traffic you have and how you configure it, the traffic can be substantial.For example, you may not want to send NetFlow data from a datacenter switch to a NetFlow collector on the other side of a small WAN circuit. Also bear in mind that the flows from aggregating large numbers of devices can add up.
